Towing for failure to comply with the City Tow Wrecker Company Guidelines:

Storage Locations

Each tow company will store the towed vehicles at their place of business or at a site readily available to owners. Vehicles will not be kept in various locations. If storage facilities are not at the business address, the motorists involved will be notified as to the exact location of their vehicles. The tow companies shall supply the Warwick Police Traffic Services Unit with the exact location of their storage facility. From time to time the Warwick Police Department may require inside storage of a vehicle. Each tow company will be required to provide the necessary space when needed.

Pat's towing made arrangements to remove this vehicle and bring it to a locksmith without the knowledge of the vehicle owner. No effort was ever made to advise the owner or to get permission from the owner to move this vehicle to a separate location or to have work done to the vehicle to rectify the lost ignition key.

Code of Conduct and Discipline for Tow List Companies

All tow companies shall comply with all regulations set forth by the Division of Public Utilities. Rate structures for towing and storage will be adhered to.

Any company found to be in violation of the minimum standards for equipment, insurance, licensing or any other previously mentioned requirement may be suspended from the tow list or removed permanently.

Tow operators shall adhere to professional standards of conduct.

No operator shall engage in speech or actions that disparage citizens and or member of the Warwick Police Department. Professional service is expected.

In addition to the previously mentioned activities, a tow company can/shall be suspended or terminated from the tow list for actions that show poor performance, careless behavior, lack of training, use of sub-standard equipment or any other violations of the traffic and criminal laws of the State of Rhode Island.

Based on the written statement from the Complainant Pat's Towing engaged in speech and actions that were disparaging to the owner of the vehicle. Pat's Towing employees would not speak with the complainant, hanging the phone up on the complainant several times and asking the complainant to leave the business.
